Related Aichi Targets: Target 6(Preservation of marine resources).
Details of Preservation: Gathering of basic data on the reservation of marine resources in Tokyo Bay collaborating with the Tokyo University of Marine Science and Technology.
Wildlife being protected: Habitat survey of Whitespotted conger, conducted from a fisherman's perspective.

The total amount of Whitespotted conger that exist in Tokyo Bay has continued to decline since peaking in 1995. In recent years, the amount has been estimated at around 200 to 300 tons. At the same time as investigating the current conditions of the catch of Whitespotted conger and the environment, the company has also verified the sequence of events that led to these conditions, through comparisons with past environment data, nautical chart data, and fish catch data of Tokyo Bay. The company monitors the movements of fishing boats, along with the monitoring of their operations, in order to understand how fishing grounds are used. Through these activities, the company cooperates in regeneration business activities aimed at promoting the sustainable use of Tokyo Bay.
